

Civil Rights Bill Shapes Up for Votes Only

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supporters of the administration's civil rights bill fought today against mounting Senate sentiment to confine the measure's terms to the protection of voting rights.

An influential senator who asked not to be quoted by name said leadership polls indicate a majority of the Senate now favors an amendment by Senators Anderson (D-MN) and Aiken (R-VT) to narrow the bill's scope.

Anderson and Aiken have proposed eliminating a section which would authorize the attorney general to seek injunctions to enforce all civil rights, including desegregation of schools and other public places.

If the amendment were adopted the proposed authority of the attorney general to intervene would be limited to cases involving voting rights.

Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) told reporters he believes the vote on the amendment "will be close, but at this point I don't believe the section would be stricken from the bill."

As an indication he wasn't certain of any such results, however, Knowland joined with Sen. Humphrey (D-Min.) yesterday in a move to chip away one portion of the controversial section.

They offered an amendment to repeal a post-Civil War reconstruction law authorizing the use of federal troops to enforce court orders. This old law had been linked in the bill to the proposed new authority for the attorney general to help enforce all civil rights.

Sen. Russell (D-Ga.) said this move constituted an admission he was correct when he told the Senate two weeks ago that the House would authorize "bayonet" enforcement of integration in the South.

Knowland and Humphrey acted after President Eisenhower had told his news conference he couldn't imagine any circumstances that would ever induce him to use federal troops to enforce court orders.

Humphrey said Atty. Gen. Brownell "made a blunder" in trying the bill to the troops-use provisions. He said he hoped "any reference to a period in American history that is a dismal and said period" would come out.

Russell said that while Southern opponents would support the Knowland-Humphrey amendment which will furnish the first voting test of Senate sentiment, the proposal did not reach the heart of their objections to the bill.

"It does not go to the main objection of that portion of the bill, which is designed to use the full force of federal power and resource to destroy the only social order the South has ever known."

There were clear indications that Knowland and Humphrey offered their amendment as only the first step in an expected retreat.

Emergency Aid on Flood Is Postponed

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas State Disaster Committee today postponed emergency conservation aid to owners of flooded farmland and asked for detailed reports from each county.

The 8-man committee heard reports of widespread disaster to farmers in northern Arkansas.

A 2-page memorandum and new damage report forms were mailed early this week to county disaster committees, setting forth the conditions under which certain aid will be granted under the federal Agricultural Conservation Program.

However, Chairman Robert A. Tindall requested a telephone report on Clay and Green counties in northern Arkansas—two of the 34 counties in Arkansas which have reported damage from spring floods.

All crops were reported as 70 to 85 per cent of normal in Greene County with 63,000 acres planted and ruined or left idle because of flood.

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — Gov. Orval B. Faubus today criticized the state Highway Department for allowing itself to get in such a tight financial pinch.

But the governor, back in his office for the first time in several weeks, could offer no suggestion by which the department might remedy the situation, which yesterday resulted in hundreds of highway workers being felled out of work.

"It sure doesn't see to fit in the term 'long range planning' that the department and commission have been talking about," he said.

The commission was meeting today to discuss the matter with contractors presently doing work for the department, and who apparently will not get paid until a later date.

Yesterday, the department revealed that it had issued orders Friday for all district engineers to file their budgets by one third. The maintenance budget for the next six months was to be cut from $6,000,000 to $4,000,000, and resulting in some 600 men, and possibly more, being out of work for the next 90 days.

Probably half of that number will be temporary or seasonal employees.

Correspondents Find It Is Tough Trying to Pin 'Ike' Down on Civil Rights Issue

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Trying to pin President Eisenhower down at his news conferences — on precisely what he wants or doesn't want in his administration's civil rights bill — is not only tough. It has been unsuccessful.

He has been asked about that bill at nine of his 17 news conferences this year—the last time was yesterday — and he hasn't been specific once.

For example, he was asked yesterday for the benefit of his thinking on enforcement of the 14th Amendment, which promises equal protection under the laws, and the 15th, which protects voting rights.

It appeared, when he started out that he was going to get down to cases and answer like a lawyer. But it didn't turn out that way.

"Well, you are asking me to become something of a lawyer in a very short order here, but I will."

"As for the moment, I have an-ounted time and again the objectives I am seeking in civil rights, and the means that I want from the legislature in order that everybody will know where they stand, and it can proceed in an orderly manner.

"I issued a little statement last evening, rephrasing of what the objectives are. Now, the matter is now, as you know, under debate in the Senate, and I think that for the moment the best thing to do is for most of us to let them do the debating, and we will see what comes out. I am very hopeful that a reasonable, acceptable bill will come out."

The statement he issued Tuesday night was the most specific, even though limited, thing he has said in or out of his news conferences. He said he favored trial by jury, without a jury, for disobedience of a court order in a case involving voting rights. And he backed, in general terms, all of the bill's four sections.

But at his news conference, the answer he gave to a question Continued on Page Four

Miss Hope Leaves for Clarksville

Judy McDowell, elected Miss Hope, 1957 daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray McDowell, left this morning at 7 for Clarksville to compete with 29 other girls for the title of Miss Arkansas Valley. The first preliminary contest in the Miss Arkansas Valley competition will begin at 2:30 p. m. this afternoon, at the Clarksville Swimming Pool. This pageant is held each year in conjunction with the Johnson County Peach Festival.

Mrs. Kinard Young, Mrs. Kenneth Henderson and Carolyn McKissack accompanied Miss McDowell as chaperones.

Good Chance Spa Hospital to Survive

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army-Navy Hospital at Hot Springs has a good chance of staying on the active list until next June 30, at least.

A Senate-House conference yesterday accepted a provision in the Senate version of the military appropriation bill which calls on the Army to keep the hospital going for the 1958 fiscal year.

Rep. W. F. Norrell (D-Ark.), one of the conferees, said he does not think the House will knock out the agreement which is part of a general compromise on the appropriation measure.

Still, there is a slight chance that a point of order could be raised against the hospital provision when the conference report goes to the lower chamber.

The Army has tried for four years to shut down Army-Navy and Murphy General Hospital at Waltham, Mass., on ground they are not needed in the service's medical program. But congressmen from Arkansas and Massachusetts have fought successfully to keep the hospitals alive.

Governor Is Critical of Road Officials

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — Gov. Orval B. Faubus today criticized the state Highway Department for allowing itself to get in such a tight financial pinch.

Drop Contempt Charge on 4 of Clinton's 15

By HELMAN MORIN

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The government today dropped criminal contempt charges against four of the 15 defendants in the Clinton segregation trial.

U.S. Dist. Atty. John C. Crawford Jr. at the outset of today's government doxy dropped criminal contempt charges against Thomas Sanders, Chris Foust, J. B. Long and J. L. Coley.

"In my opinion the evidence is not sufficient to warrant conviction of these men," Crawford told U.S. Dist. Judge Robert L. Taylor. "Therefore, I move to dismiss the charges against them."

U.S. Dist. Judge Robert L. Taylor agreed.

Crawford then told the court the government rested its case in the history-making nine-day-old trial. Chief defense counsel Robert L. Dobbbs, Memphis, immediately moved for directed verdict of acquittal for the 10 remaining defendants.

Taylor merely nodded his head without committing himself as to what his decision would be.

The statement setting forth reason for the defense motion for dismissal was dictated to the court reporter by Grover S. McLeod of Birmingham.

McLeod's statement asserted, point by point, that the government had not shown evidence to support charges against the defendants.

"The statement said 'It has not been shown' that the defendants had knowledge or notice of the final injunction issued by Taylor prohibiting interference with integration at the school."

The statement denied that they had entered into any agreement, together to violate the injunction, or that they entered into an agreement with Kasper to violate the injunction or to "attract and willfully bring to the school" on Dec. 4, 1956.

Finally, the defense's bluntest motion asserted that the U.S. District Court has no jurisdiction over the case.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The U.S. government's case neared an end today in the history-making "Clinton trial," and the defense was expected to move immediately for dismissal of the charges against 14 men and a woman who fought against enrolling Negroes in a small-town high school.

"I don't contemplate calling any more witnesses," said U.S. Dist. Atty. John C. Crawford Jr.

Both sides still can recall witnesses who have already testified. Otherwise, only the formal words — "The U.S. government rests" — remain to be said in this phase of the trial.

The government had indicted 11 Tennessee and 14 Kentucky, dark-haired John Kasper, Northern segregationist organizer, for criminal contempt.

It charges that they knowingly "acted in concert" to defy a federal injunction against interference with enrolling Negroes in Clinton High School. Clinton is a pretty highland town, population 4,500, near Knoxville.

It convicted by the all-white jury of 10 men and two women, the 16 could get a maximum penalty of six months in jail, or $1,000 fine or both.

It is considered a landmark trial, with immense implications for future civil rights cases.

And it has been a bitter, angry courtroom battle, bristling with sharp-edged words: "Nigger lover... somebody's going to get you."

3 Killed in TNT Explosion on Navy Ship

By GEORGE MACKIE

NEW LONDON, Conn. (AP) — A 21-pound T. N. T. charge went off accidentally aboard a cruising Navy escort patrol craft last night, killing three men and injuring four other seriously.

The explosion occurred aboard the 180-foot, U. S. S. Somersworth, which was on routine maneuvers in the Atlantic, about 120 miles southeast of here.

Two of the dead were identified as Anthony Fozza, pipefitter first class, whose widow lives in nearby Groton, and John R. Turley, quartermaster first class, whose widow lives in New London.

The Navy said the vessel had been engaged in test exercises since Monday morning. It docked here at dawn bearing the bodies of the three dead men.

The fatal charge was the last of about 135 discharged during the exercise, the Navy said. "The charges are used in experiments under water."

Capt. Harold E. Ruble, commander of the underwater sound laboratory, told newsmen such charges have been used by the Navy for at least 11 years. This is the first accident of its kind he was aware of, he said.

The wounded were placed aboard another Navy vessel which headed for the Newport, R.I., Naval base.

Capt. Ruble said the T. N. T. charge was contained in a metal casing, with a 40-second fuse attached. The fuse went off prematurely, he said.

The explosion apparently did not damage the Somersworth severely, or set it afire.

The liner Queen Mary, outward bound from New York to England, took the injured off the stricken ship, and was held up a little more than four hours in the process.

The Navy sent the U.S.S. Sunbird, a submarine rescue ship, from the Queen Mary. Then the Sunbird with two doctors aboard, headed for Newport.

Gamble by Two Girls Who Pooled Cash in Beauty Show Makes One 'Miss U. S. A.'

By JOHN BECKLER

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — A "go-for-broke" gamble in which two beautiful girls pooled their money to back one of them in the Miss Universe contest paid off today for lovely Leona Gage, 21, the new Miss United States of America.

The tall, raven-haired beauty from Glen Burnie, Md., who came west with her 24-year-old cousin, a $45 gown and high heels, won the coveted crown last night and will now compete in the international phase of the contest.

The gamble that led to the (bill-packed) climax was taken two months ago when Leona and her cousin, Barbara Gage, who make their home together, scraped together $45 and went shopping for a gown so Leona could enter the Miss Maryland contest.

She had $45 and she had $10, said Barbara, breathless with excitement, as she watched the pearl-encrusted Miss U.S.A. crown being placed on the dark locks of her cousin. She added:

"We had made the money modeling and it was all we had. We found a dress marked down from $80 to $45, so we bought it. And she won!"

"But we still didn't have any money. They gave Leona a two-way ticket to Long Beach so we used both ways so I could come out, to... and now she's won again!"

Barbara, who is pretty enough to be a Miss Universe contestant herself, said Leona came to live with her two years ago after her widowed mother had remarried. Glen Burnie is a suburb of Baltimore.

Barbara said while Leona, as a contestant, "has been living like a princess, she's been playing 'in a tiny place down the street' and 'living on fruit.'"

Leona won her $45 Miss Maryland dress as her formal gown on the first night of the contest, but blossomed out last night in a dazzling white dress loaned to her for the occasion by a Long Beach dress shop.

Road Builders Will Be Paid Through Aug. 15

By LEON HATCH

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Highway contractors were told today that they would be paid in full for all work done up to Aug. 15.

After that, the Highway Commission said, those who are able will be given an opportunity to finance themselves until new highway funds become available and others will be asked to take a percentage out of about 50 to 65 per cent of amount due.

The statements came from spokesmen for the Highway Commission in the second of two sessions with contractors within two days to discuss a temporary financial light in which the commission is involved.

The commission, through Chairman Glenn F. Wallace, reported formally to a committee of contractors that it called on Gov. Orval Faubus late yesterday afternoon and "laid our cards on the table" concerning a $3 million dollar shortage of construction funds up until January.

Wallace would not say definitely that the commission "petitioned" the governor for a special session of the Legislature which the contractors had urged.

"We are not in a position to tell the governor what to do," Wallace said. "He seemed sympathetic to the situation and I am sure he."

Textile Union Chief Quizzed on Funds Use

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two top officials of the United Textile Workers Union were summoned today to tell whether they used union money to buy expensive homes for themselves.

Secretary-Treasurer Lloyd Klenert, who have denied any irregularities, go before the special Senate Rackets Investigating Committee to reply to testimony that they used $37,000 from the union treasury to buy homes for themselves, and another $57,000 from the same source to "reimburse" the union.

Chairman McClellan (D-Ark.) in a statement launching this new phase of the committee's search for evidence of racketeering, graft and other wrongdoing said he public hearings would explore also allegations that Klenert dipped into the union's treasury for $40,000 more to buy things for himself, his family and friends.

A few plans for the hearings were announced, the two union officials said in a joint statement that "all expenditures of union funds have been made either with the authorization of the convention or the International Executive Council, the organization's highest governing body."

McClellan announced AFL-CIO President George Meany will be said "it has been reported to the committee that Mr. Klenert and Mr. Valente took steps to return this money for the 1952 home purchases only after their misuse of these union funds has been discovered by George Meany, then secretary-treasurer of the AFL."

The UTW is a former AFL union blanketed into the AFL-CIO in the big union merger. It still goes its separate way from the rival Textile Workers Union of America, a former CIO union, also now embraced in the parent AFL-CIO.

Martin J. Quigley, president of the Mutual Title Co. here, testified late in early May 1952. Quigley said that to finance it, Valente and Klenert "originally put up $55,000" in the form of a check drawn on their union's fund.

He said this was what the two houses cost — $42,500 for Valente's and $32,500 for Klenert's. But they used only $37,000 of the $95,000, he said because they agreed to take over and pay off mortgages totaling $38,000 outstanding against the two properties.

Agent Held Up, Robbed of $4,464

NORTH LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A collection agent for a rock 'n' roll show which appeared at Little Rock last night told police here two men robbed him of $4,464 early today.

Aldrich C. Allen, a Little Rock Negro, said one of the two white men who approached him at a service station had a "twisted mouth."

Allen told Deetl. Sgt. George Tackett that one of the men drew a pistol, forced him to drive to a residential section here and took the sack containing the cash.

The agent said the bandits also took his trousers and drove away in his car.

Police said they had no further details.

Meanwhile, Faubus said that there are state sources which can be tapped for a 3-million-dollar loan, but a special session would be required. He said that a special session would have to be called within a month in order to do any good.

The attorney general's office said that the Highway Department can engage in deficit financing but cannot pay interest or damages to contractors.

In the meeting there was some discussion whether it event of a special session an attempt would be made merely to remedy the temporary situation or whether additional money, which the commission says it needs to take full advantage of the federal matching program would be solved.

Some commissioners told newsmen that in the long range the need for additional money for the 2-year fiscal period.

That would include five million dollars to make up the current deficit plus a little surplus and an additional five million for each of the two fiscal years to permit full use of federal matching funds.

The contractors were again assured that the commission would cooperate in every way possible to prevent the from suffering financial loss due to a temporary shut-down of any contract.

This will include no effort to resist "legitimate" claims which may be presented to the state Claims Commission, commissioners said.

The commission authorized a 32-hour work week for maintenance employees so that as many of them is possibly may be kept on the payroll.

The Highway Department will not get any revenue until October because gasoline collections must be used to pay off the highway bonded debt.

Contracts were let on expectations of a large increase in revenues which failed to materialize, and as a result, the eight million dollars the department has on hand will be insufficient for its needs.

The commission voted to call in a management analyst to make recommendations on the Highway Department's organization and operation.

A resolution said that many questions had come up about the administration of the department and professional advice was needed.

By TOM NELSON

WASHINGTON, (UP) — The president of the Kansas City Athletics declared today there are absolutely no ties between his A's and the New York Yankees.

Arnold Johnson, boss of the Athletics, made the statement to a reporter before testifying at a House Anti-Trust subcommittee hearing on sports legislation.

The subcommittee planned to ask Johnson if he severed all connections with the Yankees when he got control of the Athletics in 1934 and moved them from Philadelphia to Kansas City.

Matthew M. Fox, president of Skiatron TV, Inc., also was to testify today about his plans to inaugurate pay-as-you-see TV for major league baseball.

Johnson said he disposed of all his stock in the corporation which owns Yankee Stadium a few months after he took over the Athletics.

A reporter asked if there were any connections at all between the Yankees and Athletics.

"There are none," Johnson replied.

Three weeks ago American League President Will Harridge was asked by the subcommittee if the Athletics, who got so few players from the Yankees were "serving as a farm" for the New York club. Harridge said "that is definitely not so."

Johnson belched Harridge, "I'd like to beat the Yankees every game," he said.

He said anyone who suspects a link between the teams "should see my players." Johnson said that sometimes when they lose to the Yankees "they have tears in their eyes." They have dropped 13 of their 14 games with New York this season.

Johnson headed a corporation which bought Yankee Stadium in 1933 for $6,500,000. Then through a complicated deal it leased it back to the Yankees. Harridge testified that Johnson's lawyer informed the American League on March 3, 1935, that Johnson had disposed of all his interests in that corporation.

Fox's firm, Skiatron, has been negotiating with both the New York Giants and the Brooklyn Dodgers for rights to carry their home games over closed circuit TV.

Giants President Horace Stoneham told the subcommittee yesterday he had reached an agreement with Skiatron subject to approval by his board of directors and the National League.

Stoneham said closed circuit TV would begin next season for the Giants if they move to San Francisco as they contemplate, or when their present broadcasting agreement runs out if they stay in New York.

He said he hasn't come to any agreement to shift to San Francisco but confessed he was "very interested" in the offer he received from officials of that city. He said he expects to get more details in August or early September.

If San Francisco comes up with a "suitable" proposal Stoneham said he will recommend to his board of directors that the Giants move.

DOROTHY DIX

Husband Goofed — and Suffers Consequences

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm a man of 40, divorced, and the father of two children who live with their mother. The divorce was my fault. I became infatuated with a girl who worked with me. She's 14 years younger than I and she convinced me that I was misunderstood at home. Like a fool I fell for her. Now we're married, my life is miserable and I'd give anything to undo the past year. My first wife loved me as I was; the second is trying to make me over. My children have no use for me. What can I do? — G. C.

Dear G. C.: "Experience keeps a dear school, but fools will learn in no other." — a maxim that's true or not.

When a much younger woman makes a play for a married man, look for the reason. Usually she's had to give up all prospect of matrimony with men in her own age group, or she isn't willing to hazard the financial insecurity of marriage with a younger man.

If she has the added advantage (as your second wife had) of snaring a nitwit who can be led around by the nose, she has it made. No wonder your children hold you in contempt.

With what little manhood you have left, put an end to the farce. It will cost you money but at least you'll be able to look at yourself in the mirror again.

Dear Dorothy Dix: My fiancée is a divorced man with a small child for whom he pays support. We love each other but he feels it's unfair for us to marry as long as he must support the child. I realize the difficulties of the situation, and am perfectly willing to accept them.

Why can't he see my point? I want to marry the man I love as soon as possible, not when "some day" arrives. — UNHAPPY SUE

Dear Unhappy Sue: A girl should be wary of any sutor who postulates marriage, but when the would-be husband is a divorced man with obligations, she needs a microscope to appraise the situation.

Your friend's reluctance to hitch up looks very much like the torch-carrying bit. Let him go, Sue, let him go!

Dear Dorothy Dix: I have four sisters, all substantially married while I am a spinster of moderate means. Our parents' estate is in the process of settlement, with a fifth going to each of us. I am in need of money at the moment, and want to borrow some against my share of the estate. My sisters won't allow it. Don't you think they are very mean? — K. E.

Dear K. E.: Money, especially inherited money, has disrupted many a family. Your position is by no means unique.

Any problem, no matter how small, involving the estate should be handled by a lawyer. There should be legal counsel as well as an executor in charge of your parents' estate. Talk to these people.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I made the grave mistake of dating too young. By the time I was 13 I had a long list of boy friends. I flirted with them, dated them and two-timed them. It took about four years to settle down, but I've done it now. Now I have met the boy — Clinton. He loves me, but I'm afraid my past will always come between us. I want to make everyone know that I've changed, but can't convince any of my old friends. — JOY

Dear Joy: The fact that for three or four very young teen-agers you were a little heartbreaker is no disgrace. During those years you aren't supposed to take boys seriously. It's what you do with your mature judgment that counts. When others see the change in you, they will have to believe it.

just having fun. The idea of being able to do this appealed to me then (it still does), and I spent at least 12 cents in stamps investigating the price of becoming a ventriloquist by mail. The cost came to more than I could afford at the time, but even now when I pass someone carrying a trunk I always halt and murmur, "Let me out!" Fortunately, no one pays any attention.

This has gone on for so many years that in my own mind I have reached the conclusion it's not a matter of ventriloquism at all. There is somebody in that trunk. Other invitations I explored by mail were how to build yourself from a skinny joke at the bench into a muscled man who could whip and bully, how to become an electrical engineer in 12 easy shocks, how to grow chinillas for profit in grandfather's beard during the uneasy summer months, and how to make quick money by selling Christmas cards to the neighbors just before Easter.

The postman got interested in some of these situations himself. I remember the day I got the reply to the ad saying send one dollar and receive 12 different pictures of 12 beautiful girls in 12 different poses. The postman opened that letter himself, looked at the enclosed pictures—harmless photos of old movie stars—sighed in disappointment, and marched bravely forward on his rounds.

Those were the magic days of enchantment, however, to a small eager boy anxious for learning. All that I ever knew—or even suspect—I owe to the U. S. postal service. I still regard every stamp I invested was a worthwhile investment. Never since has the world seemed quite as glamorous.

This whole golden age of youth collapsed when my mother interrupted the reply to an ad on how any girl can develop bigger busts in the privacy of her own home. Ma tore up that letter, and to this day I wonder what the postman wasn't allowed to knock once—let alone twice—for me, and I went back to studying algebra, whatever that is.

It's remarkable how often a knowledge of algebra stands a boy in good stead at critical moments later in his life.

about section No. 3 angered Northern Democrats who are helping his Republicans fight for the bill. Under that section the attorney general—without request from anyone—could move in through court orders to force public school integration. Eisenhower was asked if he favored this. His first word was "no," and he added not without a request from "local authorities."

But he quickly backed away from that, saying he didn't want to go further than the "little memorandum I published last evening."

Sen. Douglas (D-Ill.), one of the Northerners fighting for the bill, told the Senate after he heard what Eisenhower said: "It's a very embarrassing position if the President has pulled the rug out from under us."

But Douglas said he wasn't sure what Eisenhower's position was. At the very start of his news conference he was asked if he was "aware" that this bill, by linking itself up with a post-Civil War law, would authorize him to call out the troops to back up a court order in civil right.

"There may be that kind of authority resting somewhere," he replied, "but certainly I am not seeking any additional authority of that kind."

Shortly afterward the leader of his Senate Republicans, Sen. Knowland of California, and one of the leaders of the Northern Democrats, Sen. Humphrey of Minnesota, proposed in the Senate that the old post-Civil War law be abolished.

That use-of-troops tie-up with Eisenhower's civil rights bill has been one of the points the Southern Democrats have hit hardest in their fight against the entire bill.

Nashville Is Beaten 7-6 by All-Stars

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Southern Association All Stars edged host Nashville 7-6 last night before 10,500 fans who stuck out the rain delayed, 19th annual classic.

The Stars won it in the ninth after the Vols had come from behind to tie the score in the sixth and eighth innings.

A severe thunderstorm delayed the game an hour and a half after the second inning. Rain continued through the third, and the infield was sloppy.

Chattanooga's Hal Griggs, who came on in the eighth with the score at 6-4, was credited with the win. It was Chattanooga Manager Carl Erbes third, All Star victory and the ninth for All-Star teams against 10 wins for the host clubs in the series.

The fans were treated to three home runs, all with the bases empty. The All Stars had two, Ben Downs in the seventh and Bob Coats in the eighth. Downs is a Little Rock outfielder, and Coats a Memphis outfielder.

The Vol homer was Tommy Brown's blast in the sixth.

In 1956, Ireland attracted 50,000 tourists, largest in her history and a 15 percent increase over the previous year.

It May Be Only a Standee to the World But to Miss Hope It's a Real Boone

No sooner had the cheering died after last Saturday's Hope Junior Chamber of Commerce promotion of the Beauty Pageant than Henry (Doc) Seamans, manager of the Saenger theater, got a promotional idea all his own. He asked Miss Hope, Judy McDowell, to pose with a pastebord cut-out of Pat Boone — star of the picture "Bernardine" which shows at the Saenger next Sunday and Monday.

STAMPEDE AT BLUE SPRINGS

THE STORY: Harney Blanchard, the federal marshal who lost his prisoner to a mob in Blue Springs, tells Pike Ambrose he must get Pete Dorsey, the prisoner, back alive. Pike doesn't believe the kidnappers will do anything to Dorsey until Cole Jethroe arrives. Cole is the brother of Barney Jethroe, whose death was caused by Dorsey.

CHAPTER IV

I went back to the livery. I undid the padlock and opened the door.

I went in and threw the lock and lit the lantern in the harness room and went to the back of the barn. I went over and slapped the rump of my good old horse, Pilot, and he turned around and looked at me. I took a quick look at Goliath, my mule, and then went up the loft ladder and into my room and pitched onto my bunk without even taking my boots off.

The night Pa died came back to me strong and clear. Amos Carter found Pa crumpled up at the foot of Black Bluff. Drunk, gambo said, stumbling blind drunk. Must have just walked off the bluff.

Pa was worthless. I got to say that. But he was Pa and it wasn't easy to think of him being dead. I was Lillian Jethroe, Barney's wife, who helped me bury Pa. She even tried to get Jordan Peterson to let him into the town cemetery but Peterson wouldn't stand still for that. So we took him in Lillian's buggy up to The Hook and I dug a hole and Lillian helped lay him out and read some verses over him. She was the only one in town who helped me. I never forgot that. Pa never talked about my Ma and couldn't remember her. But I remember Lillian and everything she did.

It wasn't long before I saw that most folks in Blue Springs would just as soon I left town. Sometime it was only stubbornness that made me stay. I figured the town owed me something for Pa and I wanted to stay around to collect.

I was sure the day was coming when folks would wish they'd been good to me. Even if I was the son of Chad Ambrose. The more I thought about it, laying there in the quiet dark, the more it looked like that day was here.

I saw light through cracks in the east wall of the barn and I knew night had run out. I grabbed my hat and headed for the loft ladder. There was maybe half an hour until train time and I had to talk to Blanchard. I went down the ladder in a stretch and a jump and walked to the front of the barn. Owen was standing in the harness room doorway.

"Whoa," Owen said, grabbing any arm "Come to do."

"I got thing to do."

"Sure. Right here in the barn. This ma Blanchard, he can wait."

Owen knew already. Then everybody in town would know by noon.

"I know about you," he said. "You listen here, Pike. Shag around with that Blanchard all you want. When it's all done with, you ain't nothin' but Pike Ambrose. It don't take you high-and-mighty, running with 'him and mighty, just get you in trouble, likely."

"I got to do it, Owen. You got to give me some time out of the barn." I headed out the door.

"You're plumb crazy," Owen said at my back.

I stopped at the door of the Prairie Haven, working up nerve to go in. It didn't take long. The lobby was full of hick shadow and a wide sun stream from a back window with dust moving across it. Randall Hewitt started to get up out of a big leather chair behind the counter. Then he saw it was me and settled back, sleepy-eyed, yawning.

I said, "The marshal from Omaha City, Blanchard. He come down yet?"

Hewitt opened his eyes all the way. "He come down maybe half an hour ago."

"Know where he got to?" Hewitt shook his head.

"Much obliged," I said and went out of there.

I turned the corner and headed into the sun toward the depot. I went around it to the east side and here was Blanchard, leaning against the wall, his hat low on his forehead against the sun.

smoke from a cigaret drifting around his coat. He wore a coat made out of some shiny goods I'd never seen before, and stay pahts, plain townsmen's boot and a blue cotton shirt like mine open at the neck. He stood with his thumbs hooked into his guff belt. He turned his head a little toward me. I leaned against the wall not far from him, tipped my hat and started making a smoke.

Blanchard cleared his throat. "Howdy You a . . . particular friend of Dorsey's?"

"No. Hardly knew him at all." "Then what are you?"

"I shrugged. 'Just a fellow that sees you need help.'"

Blanchard nodded. "I needed it last night, too."

"It's different now." "Glad to hear it." "It's Cole Jethroe." I busted out, wanting to get it all out of my head and into Blanchard's. "When he comes, then—"

"Wait," Blanchard said. "Things sure changed since last night. Tell me first who got Dorsey."

I swallowed hard. I wanted to work up to that, like going to swim in a cold river, one foot first, then the rest of you, but slow.

The set of his face told me it wasn't any accident, wanting to know that first. I took a big breath. "I said, 'Clemens, Dan and Eric Clement.'"

Pocket 'Phone Has a Range of 8 Miles

ALLENTOWN, Pa. — A pocket "telephone" was put into service today by the Bell Telephone Co. It is actually a transistor radio receiver about the size of a cigarette pack. The carrier can be signaled from a central switchboard that he is wanted. Then he goes to a telephone and dials a pre-arranged number. A special operator will handle the calls. She "dials a number

News Briefs

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Gov. Orval Faubus, who entered a hospital here Friday for a checkup, probably will go home today, a spokesman for the governor's office said. The aide said Faubus is feeling "fine."

DUMAS (AP)—Two cars collided on State Highway 54 in the nearby Pendleton Community yesterday, killing a 63-year-old Ward County shoe salesman.

State Trooper R. E. Brown said Albert Homer Campbell of Saco, Ark., a wholesale agent for a Dallas, Tex., shoe manufacturer, apparently was "en route to" a Pendleton Ferry when the accident occurred. Campbell was killed instantly.

The driver of the second car, Billy Pat Daniel, 34, a Pendleton farmer, was not hurt, the trooper said.

Many Indian women in western United States wash their hair with "amole," the root of one species of Yucca, the state flower of New Mexico.
